

Client: Bâoli, Marion, El Tucán

Date: July 30, 2019

Outlet: Miami Food Porn

UVM: 885

MIAMI FOOD PORN

The Miami Spice Guide for Every Personality

The Miami Spice Guide for Every Personality

July 30, 2019

By: Dana Rozansky & Rebecca Charur

Miami Spice is like the Bachelorette. Bear with us on this one.

As the new Miami Spice season kicks off, the city's most eligible restaurants line up to vie for your appetite with the year's most attractive deals: Three-course meals priced at $23 for lunch/brunch and $39 for dinner. But out of the 250 options, some may not be all they're hyped up to be (subtweet Jed). So to methodically sort through the clutter between August 1 and September 30, you need a Chris Harrison.

Hi, we're your Chris Harrison. Having been fans of Miami Spice since its inception in 2002, we get the struggle of choosing between 250 restaurants. So, unlike the less-than-helpful, pot-stirring host, we've gathered a list of the restaurants that are most worthy of your final rose to guide you through these months.

Whether you're a brunch snob or a meat-lover, here is a round-up of Miami's hottest deals that are sure to get your hearts racing and stomachs growling.

The Miami Spice Guide for Every Personality

FOR THE SCENESTER: MARION, BAOLI OR EL TUCAN

As prices drop this August and September, the buzz in these restaurants are at an all-time high. While Marion, Baoli, and El Tucan are known for their vibrant, party atmospheres, their Spice menus are not to be missed. With risotto hot pots, wagyu beef, and stunning sorbet presentations gracing their menus, this trio of restaurants understands that the secret to a good party is in the food. Other highlights include Baoli's tuna tart, Marion's chicken lollipops, and El Tucan's two-timing tuna roll.

